Student-at-Large Status

Student-at-large status is available for persons who have not yet been accepted by the College as classified students.

1. Persons who wish to take a course as a student-at-large may obtain a special registration form from the Office of the Registrar's web site. At-large students who wish to seek admission to a graduate program must obtain a grade of B or better in all courses taken or risk not being admitted. Students who have been accepted into a program may have their admission rescinded if they do not receive a grade of B or better in all courses taken prior to matriculation as an accepted student.
2. Students need the signature of the Associate Dean for Academic Affairs for the course in which they are interested.
3. At-large registration forms are processed two weeks prior to the beginning of classes.
4. Tuition is assessed at the regular tuition rate for all at-large students.
5. A student may not accumulate more than 12 credit hours of at-large status. Review of the program of study in which the student is interested to guide course selection is highly recommended.
6. It is also highly recommended that students interested in admission to a particular specialty call the specialty coordinator to notify them of their interest. Some of the specialties are very competitive.
7. At-large students may not take clinical courses.
8. Students who have been dismissed from the College and wish to retake courses as at-large students must seek permission from the Associate Dean for Academic Affairs.
