

How to Read Your Rush University Award Offer

Estimated Budget: Full details are available at <http://www.rushu.rush.edu/finaid/costs/index.html>.

- Tuition: Total cost of tuition for all quarters for which aid has been awarded. Tuition is charged quarterly, and your bill is due by the end of the first week of each quarter. Payment plans are available through the Financial Affairs Office (312.942.6584).
- Books/Supplies: The amount listed is an allowance. Purchases of books and supplies are not automatically deducted from the financial assistance you have secured. We do our best to provide reasonable allowances based on your program, but actual costs may vary.
- Living Allowance: Students are allowed to borrow to cover outside costs such as rent, utilities, transportation expenses, etc. Students living in Center Court housing will have their quarterly rent charge deducted from their financial assistance. Students borrowing in excess of their billed charges will be issued an overpayment check during the first week of the quarter.
- Medical Insurance Allowance: All Rush University students are required to have insurance. Rush Medical College (RMC) students are required to be on the plan provided through the University, and the insurance cost is included in the RMC tuition amount listed. All other students in all other programs that wish to have their insurance costs added to their budget should contact the Office of Student Financial Aid.

Resources:

- Students submitting a FAFSA to the US Department of Education will have an “EFC” calculated based upon their income and assets. The number calculated has very little to do with what you will owe to Rush each academic year. We use this information to determine your eligibility for financial assistance. In general, students can borrow to cover the Student Contribution listed on their award offer, if necessary.

Financial Aid Awards:

- Financial aid awards may consist of a combination of loans (amounts that must be repaid, with interest), grants/scholarships (“free” money), or work (Federal College Work-Study).
- Aid amounts tend to be awarded in quarterly installments, with specific amounts being applied to quarterly charges.
- Total amounts awarded each quarter may vary depending on your actual costs for a specific quarter.
- New students will be required to complete loan paperwork for each type of loan they accept.
- In general, students must be enrolled at least half-time to be eligible for financial assistance
