Description and Primary Aims:

2 quarter hours course

7 Student groups

Health Care in America is designed for students who are entering the health professions. Contemporary issues in the American health care system are presented by University and Medical Center leaders. The course introduces students to the complexity of the US healthcare system, including its historical development.

Teaching and Learning Methods Used in this Course:

- Weekly supplemental lecture material and points of clarification. Each lecture covers the identified health care topic and includes examples of operations and research scenarios using the topic and associated methods. Lectures are available in Blackboard and must be reviewed prior to class.
- Weekly interactive application. Each group will have a session involving a question and answer period and panel discussion with lecturers. An application problem will also be presented.
- Weekly sign-in to capture student attendance.
- Topic quiz to assess knowledge of each health care topic.
- Group project designed to evaluate the ability to synthesize the literature and perspectives of clinicians on a simulated or real-world health care problem.

Rush Advanced Trauma Training Program (ATTP)

Rush University
Rush Medical College
Department of Emergency Medicine
Chicago, IL

Description:

- >3000 Military Medics trained to date nationally and US territories.
- The Rush Advanced Trauma Training Program (ATTP) is a five day program centered in trauma and bioterrorism, designed to train military medical personnel for wartime deployment, and for post military service civilian acclimation.
- 4-6 courses annually with average of 30-50 participants.
- The course is comprised of 8-9 hour days for a total of 5 days which includes didactic lectures and hands-on procedural skills stations, and also incorporating Post Traumatic Stress Disorder (PTSD) and mild Traumatic Brain Injury (mTBI) educational group sessions.
- The course is focused and based on International Trauma Life Support (ITLS) and Basic Disaster Life Support (BDLS®) registered established curriculum.
- The skills stations are comprised of 3 hands-on modules: live tissue laboratory, cadaver laboratory, and a procedural simulation lab, each developed with emphasis on advanced surgical airways, emergent vascular access and traumatic cardiothoracic surgical procedures.
- The participants also perform ambulance “ride along” with the Chicago Fire Department during their training.
- The final stage of the course culminates in a large expansive mass casualty simulation scenario (MasCal) which allows the instructors the ability to evaluate the soldiers during real time triaging, performance of emergent trauma surgical procedures, and maintain patient stabilization.
- Progressively expanding the program to broaden the scope of military trauma care
- Created and implemented a large MasCal simulation scenario
- Created the education curriculum for each skill station
- Expansion of the ATTP program to include Advanced Cardiac Life Support (ACLS) and Pediatric Advanced Life Support (ACLS) certification classes
- Additional rotation in the Trauma & Burn Unit (ICU) at John H. Stroger, Jr. Hospital of Cook County

Disaster Management Preparedness for Emergency Physicians

Rush University
Rush Medical College
Department of Emergency Medicine
Chicago, IL

Description:

1 year longitudinal course
16 Emergency Physicians Faculty participants
~100 contact hours

- The course took place at an urban tertiary care medical center from July 2007 until June 2008.
- The six core topics in the first training modality were: chemical, biological, radio-nuclear, explosive (CBRNE) disasters, naturally-occurring disasters, and the Hospital Incident Command System (HICS).
- The second modality of training was “Merit-badge” courses, which included provider level education in Basic Disaster Life Support (BDLS), Advanced Disaster Life Support (ADLS), and Advanced Hazmat Life Support (AHLS).
- The third training modality included a practicum that was designed specifically for HAZMAT equipment set up, Personal Protection Equipment (PPE) utilization, decontamination procedures, communication modalities, and a hospital-wide disaster drill at the end of the year.
- The one year long, comprehensive, pilot training program focused on disaster preparedness concepts, and demonstrated a statistically significant increase in knowledge among the target audience of emergency physicians.
- The course participants believed that the program improved their overall level of preparedness for disaster management.

Rush University Medical Center
Chicago, IL

Description:

I participated in the completion of the application process for Rush University Medical Center to receive its' initial accreditation as a Chest Pain Center by the Society of Chest Pain Centers.

Accreditation is a quality improvement program designed for hospital cardiovascular (CV) teams that are focused on the efficient and effective care of acute coronary syndrome (ACS) patients. A Chest Pain Center (CPC) Accreditation program offers a unique opportunity to examine and assess operational fitness without intimidating scrutiny or daunting penalties for non-compliance.

CPC Accreditation strives to establish consistent, high quality processes across the continuum of care to furnish a roadmap for progress and that leads to highly valued sustainable performance improvement. The CPC Accreditation helps to:

- Reduce variations of care
- Lower length of stay (LOS)
- Sustain consistent process improvement
- Decrease readmissions
- Maximize reimbursements

The purpose of this funding opportunity announcement (FOA) is to invite applications for Clinical Centers (Hubs) in Strategies to Innovate EmeRgENcy Care Clinical Trials Network (SIREN). SIREN will enable conduct of high-quality, multi-site clinical trials to improve the outcomes for patients with neurologic, cardiac, respiratory, and hematologic, and trauma emergency events. SIREN will consist of one Clinical Coordinating Center (CCC), one Data Coordinating Center (DCC) and up to 10 clinical centers (Hubs). A Hub will typically be an academic center or tertiary referral center which will actively enroll patients into every clinical trial performed in SIREN, regardless of disease focus. A Hub will additionally provide scientific leadership and administrative oversight to its multiple satellite sites ("Spokes"). Together the Hub and Spokes will provide access to a large and varying patient population for clinical trials. SIREN will implement a total of at least four large (>1,000 patient) simple, pragmatic clinical trials in the emergency department and pre-hospital settings. The clinical trials will be meritorious, peer-reviewed projects which will be awarded under separate funding announcements.
