Subj: Suspension of Clinical Rotations Requiring Patient Contact

The Rush University Command Center has made the decision to suspend all clinical rotations for Rush students, regardless of college, location, or specialty, effective at the end of today. This decision is consistent with our commitment to keep you as safe as possible while providing the needed educational experiences to assure competence in your required areas of study. The suspension of clinical activities for Rush students includes all sites across the country and is consistent with what other universities are implementing.

In as much as it is possible, virtual case studies and other online and remote tools will be substituted for clinical rotations. In some instances, your rotation may be completed at a later time.

Please contact your clinical coordinator, clerkship director, program director, or course director with questions and concerns.
