Subj: Summer Term Remote Instruction

Rush University's highest priorities are the safety of our students, faculty and employees and the quality of education we provide. As we navigate this unprecedented time and guided by our core values, we have decided to continue remote instruction into the summer term where remote instruction can be accommodated.

We have excellent capabilities to provide instruction online, and have even excelled as leaders in online learning throughout the university. We are dedicated to providing a high-quality student experience, and are committed to providing you with the knowledge, skills, and abilities to be successful in your respective health care career.

We are continuing to monitor the national and global COVID-19 situation, and will continue to communicate with you regularly about how it affects your time at Rush. We will reinstate clinical experiences and labs as soon as it is safe. As current and future members of the health care field, we know that you understand the incredible lengths that need to be taken to ensure the health and safety of our communities.

We have worked hard to adjust and adapt as we moved our coursework online, and are grateful to our students, faculty, and staff that made this transition as smooth as possible. The feedback we received from student and faculty surveys is being used to improve your experience and we will continue to solicit your input to adjust.

Feel free to reach out to your program, college and university resources to make sure that you are getting the support you need. This pandemic is a new and monumental experience for all of us, so please know that we are here for you.

Thank you and please stay safe.
