Faculty Recognition Reception

June 25, 2014

Dear Faculty,

It is with great pleasure and pride that I congratulate the 2013-2014 Faculty Excellence Award winners, those faculty who received other awards, and everyone who was promoted and appointed to senior ranks in the past year.

These dedicated and talented faculty members have made significant and lasting contributions to Rush University. Our awardees' efforts have touched the personal and professional lives of countless patients, families, colleagues and trainees. In the process, they have enriched our academic community and beyond in immeasurable ways.

As we work together to address the many challenges we face in academic medicine, I feel truly fortunate to work in such splendid company. Thank you for joining me in celebrating the accomplishments of the Rush University faculty.

Sincerely,

Thomas A. Deutsch, MD
Provost, Rush University
Dean, Rush Medical College

Faculty Recognition Reception

June 25, 2014

Dear Faculty,

Welcome to the fourth Annual Faculty Recognition reception. Congratulations to Rush Faculty Excellence Award winners, nominees and all faculty for their determination, hard work, exceptional academic achievements, leadership, appointments, and promotions.

The accomplishments of our faculty pay homage to the ever growing reputation and image of Rush University. I am proud of our faculty who represent excellence in clinical, education and research endeavors, as well as community services. It is my privilege to serve all of you.

The Office of Academic Affairs is here to enrich faculty academic life and advance faculty professional, career, and leadership development. Thank you for your support and commitment to the office and participation in our programs. We look forward to your continued engagement.

Sincerely,

Susan Chubinskaya, PhD

Excellence In Clinical Service

Lynne T. Braun, PhD, CNP, FAAN

Dr. Lynne T. Braun, Professor in the Department of Adult Health and Gerontological Nursing and nurse practitioner was nominated by Dr. Elizabeth Carlson, Professor and Chair in the Department of Adult Health and Gerontological Nursing.

Dr. Braun has a national and international reputation for her expertise in cardiovascular health. She is a co-author of four American Heart Association (AHA)/American College of Cardiology (ACC) Scientific Statements, the AHA/ACC statement on Performance Measures for the Primary Prevention of Cardiovascular Disease, and two AHA clinical practice guidelines and has made keynote and major presentations on cardiovascular issues around the nation and world.

In the last 33 years, Dr. Braun has been an active volunteer for the American Heart Association. She has given numerous presentations about heart disease prevention to a variety of lay groups, particularly African American groups of women in churches and sororities. Dr. Carlson writes of Dr. Lynne T. Braun, “[it is her] commitment to caring for patients and improving the health of the community [that] are hallmarks of her career. Despite her many achievements, she is extremely humble and selfless. She does not hesitate to help a student, faculty member or others that seek her advice and assistance.”

Excellence In Clinical Service

Yanina Purim-Shem-Tov, MD, MS, FACEP

Dr. Yanina Purim-Shem-Tov, Associate Professor and Director of Research in the Department of Emergency Medicine was nominated by Dr. Dino Rumoro, Chairperson of the Department of Emergency Medicine. Dr. Purim actively works to place Rush Emergency Department on the map as a place where cutting edge clinical research is performed to improve patient health-care. Her current research is focused on patients who belong to Medical Home Network (MHN).

From the start of Dr. Purim's career at Rush, she has worked to establish the Clinical Guidelines for the management of both ST-elevation myocardial infarction (STEMI) and non-ST-elevation myocardial infarction (NSTEMI) patients. She has been instrumental in developing the Chest Pain Center (CPC). For her work and devotion in this capacity, she was promoted to Medical Director of the Center. Dr. Rumoro states, "her drive and perseverance in this venue has led to system changes through the city of Chicago. She has changed the face of emergent cardiac care at Rush and improved the overall cardiac health of the community serviced."

In April of 2014, Dr. Purim was elected to the Board of Directors for Illinois College of Emergency Physicians (ICEP). She employs her clinical skills by regularly working in the Emergency room at Rush University and a Suburban Trauma Center; the diversity of the institutions helps preserve and develop her skills. Dr. Rumoro boasts, "she has a strong reputation as one of the emergency department's finest clinicians providing excellent care and is well beyond deserving of the Excellence in Clinical Service Award."

Excellence In Education

Richard I. Abrams, MD

Dr. Richard I. Abrams, Associate Professor in the Department of Internal Medicine was nominated by Dr. Amir Jaffer, Professor in the Department of Internal Medicine and Senior Vice Chair and Assistant Chief Medical officer. In the last twenty two years, Dr. Abrams, as an attending at Rush, has dedicated himself to the education of medical students, residents and fellows. He was instrumental in the development of the Primary Care Internal Medicine residency program at Rush University Medical Center and Stroger Hospital. He precepted at the resident's continuity clinic and developed its curriculum. Dr. Abrams created "Atrium Teams," the first internal medicine housestaff teams at Rush to have a single attending for both patient care and teaching, which became the model for the Rush University Internists' Hospital Medicine service. Dr. Abrams has presented multiple Medical Grand Rounds and countless didactic lectures to Rush residents and students.

As a program director, Dr. Abrams has been involved in the education and career development of thousands of residents with whom he met individually to provide feedback; he has been a source of guidance. For all his efforts, Dr. Abrams has received an Excellence in Teaching Award for community based teaching from the American College of Physicians/ American Society of Internal Medicine and was elected to the Mark H. Lepper Society of Teachers, an exclusive group of only the very finest teachers. Dr. Amir Jaffer states, "Dr. Richard I. Abrams truly embodies the qualities and characteristics one would like to see in a master educator; he has achieved an exceptional status."

Excellence In Education

Frank D. Hicks, PhD, RN

Dr. Frank D. Hicks, Associate Professor and Director of Generalist Education, College of Nursing, was nominated by Dr. Marquis Foreman, Acting Dean, Department of Adult Health and Gerontological Nursing, College of Nursing. Dr. Hicks has a passion to educate through encouraging strong decision-making abilities and sound clinical judgment in his students. Dr. Foreman states, “his approaches are student-centered and he adapts his teaching style and pedagogy to best fit students’ learning needs.” He is known for innovation in the classroom, having implemented the first problem-based advanced adult health course at Loyola University School of Nursing in 1998. As the assistant dean, he led the development and implementation of the pre-licensure Generalist Entry Masters (GEM) and post-licensure Clinical Nurse Leader (CNL) programs. These programs have gone on to make a huge impact on health care organizations regionally. GEM, one such program, attracts students from around the country, who are aware of the program’s high-quality and excellent outcomes, including the highest NCLEX pass rate in the city, an average CNL certification pass rate of 92%, and a 90% employment rate within nine months of graduation from the program. Similarly, he is sought as a consultant nationally on curriculum design, evaluation, and the development of master’s entry programs, and has been involved in the development of the CNL certification examination and a CNL examination review course through the American Association of Colleges of Nursing (AACN).

Dr. Hicks is the founding director of The Center of Excellence for Nursing Education Innovation and Scholarship (CENIES). He was also recently named an Illinois Board of Higher Education Nursing Education Fellow. Dr. Foreman states, “Dr. Hicks brings the best and most innovative pedagogies to bear to improve student learning; his contribution to nursing education at Rush, and beyond, is outstanding.”

Excellence In Education

Patricia A. McCarthy, PhD

Dr. Patricia A. McCarthy, Professor and Audiology Program Director in the Department of Communication Disorders and Sciences, with conjoint appointment in the Department of Otolaryngology Head and Neck Surgery was nominated by Dr. Dianne Meyer, Associate Professor, Section Director and Chair of the Department of Communicative Disorders and Sciences. Dr. McCarthy is a true educator as she engages and inspires her students both in the classroom and the clinical setting. Her course evaluations, based on the benchmarked IDEA system, placed her courses in the highest 10-20% of excellence nationwide. Dr. McCarthy has made an enduring impact on students and practicing professionals world-wide. Thus, she is often invited to speak at professional education meetings. The textbook that she co-edited in the area of rehabilitative audiology enjoyed three editions and was the most widely used textbook for both professionals and graduate students.

Under her leadership as Director of the Doctor of Audiology (AuD) program, the curriculum has undergone improvements and innovations. She has been instrumental in the program's high USNWR rating (#10) and its perfect student satisfaction scores (5/5). Additionally, she mentors 8 – 10 adjunct faculty a year for the AuD curriculum, advising them on re syllabi, Blackboard, course content, and student expectations. Dr. Meyer commends, "Dr. McCarthy is a consummate Educator who has made enormous educational contributions at Rush."

Excellence in Research

Deborah A. Hall, MD, PhD

Dr. Deborah A. Hall, Associate Professor, in the Department of Neurological Sciences, was nominated by Dr. Christopher G. Goetz, Professor and Director, Section of Movement Disorders in the Department of Neurological Sciences. Dr. Hall has focused her research interests in fragile X-associated disorders, genetics, and Parkinsonism. She has established the first Fragile X-associated Tremor/Ataxia (FXTAS) Syndrome clinic in the country by collaborating with Dr. Elizabeth Berry-Kravis in the Department of Pediatrics. The combined program, recognized by the National Fragile X Foundation, draws patients from around the country and allows research success in this group of genetic disorders that crosses all generations from very young children to elderly adults. In addition, Dr. Hall has established the Chicago Fragile X Research Group, which pulls together all collaborators and researchers in the Midwest. She received the Hagerman Award for Groundbreaking Research on FXTAS, the highest national award available in the area of neurology. Currently, Dr. Hall has a NINDS R01 award, secured during the NIH sequester, to investigate Fragile X gene gray zone expansions in adult patients. After discovering and publishing her data on this topic, she has become an international leader.

Dr. Hall has served as one of the IRB Vice-Chairpersons, providing service on behalf of all researchers doing clinical studies at Rush. She is involved in research mentorship of fellows, residents and medical students at Rush Medical College. Dr. Hall admirably embodies the Rush Mission of a leading research center of local, national and international prestige. Dr. Goetz states, "Dr. Hall has brought our Medical Center into the national level for the study of Fragile X-related neurological disorders and has shown exemplary accomplishments worthy of this award."

Excellence in Mentoring

Zoe Arvanitakis, MD, MS

Dr. Zoe Arvanitakis, Associate Professor in the Department of Neurological Sciences, works at the Rush Alzheimer's Disease Center. She was nominated by Dr. Donna Bergen, Professor and Assistant Chair in the Department of Neurological Sciences, who states, "Dr. Arvanitakis plays a crucial role in our residency recruitment, education, and mentoring. She stands out in the amount of time, energy, and creativity which she brings to these activities." Dr. Arvanitakis holds many roles; she is a cognitive neurologist with a focus on neurodegenerative and vascular dementia as well as a clinician-scientist who conducts research on cognitive aging. She is a member of the inter-professional organization at Rush which helps identify, inspire, and promote female faculty into leadership positions.

When the department of Neurological sciences started requiring residents to design and carry out a research project, Dr. Arvanitakis embraced the responsibility of overseer. She wrote and now supervises an annual course on clinical research for the residents, which includes valid study design, ethical standards of human research, IRB requirements, and basic data analysis. Throughout this mentoring process Dr. Arvanitakis has shown residents the processes of clinical research and has inspired some to choose academic careers. She actively shares her excitement and expertise in clinical research and demonstrates how to integrate such research into a busy clinical career. Her involvement in the Rush Women's Leadership Council has expanded her mentoring to an institutional level. Dr. Arvanitakis is generous with her time and plays an active role in the career development of others; she is the embodiment of excellence in mentoring.

Excellence in Mentoring

Richard G. Trohman, MD, MBA

Dr. Richard G. Trohman, the Grace DeForest and William Louis Veeck Professor of Cardiovascular Research and Professor of Medicine and Pediatrics at Rush Medical College was nominated by Dr. Elijah H. Beaty, Fellow, Clinical Cardiac Electrophysiology. Dr. Trohman is the director of Electrophysiology, Arrhythmia and Pacemaker Services as well as the Heart Station at Rush University Medical Center. He has received three awards for outstanding teaching in the field of cardiovascular medicine. These recognitions are fitting for an educator who actively focuses on the paths of students; he inquires as to their interests, supports their decisions and guides them in their steps.

Dr. Trohman is a past member of the Heart Rhythm Society's Clinical and Research Training Committee and the current chair of the Heart Rhythm Society's Member Relations Committee. He represented the Heart Rhythm Society on the Technology Assessment Committee for Endoscopy in Patients with Implanted Electronic Devices, the "Arrest the Risk" Campaign, and is a member of the society's 35th Anniversary Task Force. Dr. Trohman is an editorial referee for 42 medical journals and an editorial board (or advisory board) member of eight additional journals. He has been the recipient of 15 annual awards for excellence as an editorial referee. Additionally, he has authored or co-authored more than 320 abstracts, articles and book chapters in the field of clinical electrophysiology. He has vast laboratory experience, numerous academic accomplishments, and is highly recognized for his 25 years of exemplary mentoring fellows. He provides autonomy in the lab and allows opportunity for his trainees to surmount challenges and gain self-sufficiency. Dr. Beaty states, "Dr. Trohman, provides support and advocates for the achievement of those he mentors. He embodies the Rush ideal of an excellent mentor."
